Insect Control for the Season

If you battled insects like caterpillars and bagworms and japanese beetles eating your shrubs and trees or emerald ash borer, you probably will be fighting them again next year. There is an easy way to protect your plants without spraying. Bayer 12-Month Tree and Shrub Protect and Feed will control (kill) insects in non fruit bearing trees and shrubs all year. Best of all, it is applied as a soil drench (watered into the roots) – no spraying! The product should be applied in early spring so that your plants are protected when the insects appear.

Don't need 12-month control for roses and flowers? No worries, Bayer All-In-One Rose and Flower Care will control insects and disease for 6 to 8 weeks. Either way this is the easiest way to control insects from damaging your valued plants.
